【Telephone English -06】Call Centre English - Talking To
A Difficult Customer (與困難的客戶交談)

Updated: Nov 16

1. It's always a hard day when you have to deal with a difficult customer.
2. Whether the mistake is on your or the customer's part, you have to be polite if you want to keep the customer coming back.
This lesson has conversations about such a situation and how to deal with it.
3. To brush up your vocabulary, have a look at the vocabulary section at the end and practice using the words in the sentences. Let's get started then?

Hello.

Hello sir.

Where's Ginny?

Ginny's off today, Sir. May I help you?

Where's Tom Newsome?

He had to go to our other store. Can I help you?

We bought a sofa bed there, and I found a big hole in the mattress when it was delivered.

We've been buying for the past 10 years from your store. I can't believe you'd sell something like that to a loyal customer.

We appreciate your loyalty towards our store. I'm terribly sorry for that.

I can't believe our warehouse could ship a damaged piece of furniture.

(We really appreciate your loyalty towards our store. I'm really sorry about what has happened. Our warehouse should not be shipping damaged furniture, I will report this to management and have it looked into. Do you still have your sales receipt?)

Well, they sure did! I just told you they did! Don't you believe me?

Your Order

Your order is a list of the items you want to buy. You place an order with a business, and then they try to fill your order.

Dispatches

Sent off to be delivered to the customer. A store dispatches your order to be sent to you, but you may also dispatch something, maybe a check that you mail, or a package to a family member.

Dispatched

Dispatched is a formal way to say "sent."
